

---

Aromatherapy Massage

Posted by admin - 2007/07/06 21:15

---

Hi all

I have just added a new article about aromatherapy massage...

<http://www.ecoholisticcommunity.com/aromatherapy/aromatherapy-tips/aromatherapy.html>

Post edited by: admin, at: 2007/07/06 22:44

---

Re:Aromatherapy Massage

Posted by drew888 - 2007/07/07 17:49

---

That's a very good article and thanks for posting.

Combining aromatherapy and massage is a very good combination. It's something that would help relax the mind as well as the body at the same time. The benefits are obvious and it sounds like something everyone should try.

---

Re:Aromatherapy Massage

Posted by Rohitpatel - 2007/07/17 07:47

---

Well I am good in Yoga but if someone ask me on Massage I am newbie. Thanks for posting such a wonderfull article. I hope you would also add an artilce on Ayurvedic Massage.

---

Re:Aromatherapy Massage

Posted by Ricardo - 2007/07/20 15:10

---

I see a lot of advertising for aromatherapy in the city.

Is there a degree to make practitioners of this "official"?

---

Re:Aromatherapy Massage

Posted by hazephase - 2007/07/26 07:51

---

There are collages that can offer you a degree , where are you form ? that the most important thing . if you are collage in the UK that can offer you a degree and even in the US

---

Re:Aromatherapy Massage

Posted by James - 2007/08/18 21:08

---

Ricardo wrote:

I see a lot of advertising for aromatherapy in the city.

Is there a degree to make practitioners of this "official"?

There is no one size fits all aromatherapy qualification. However the qualifications are becoming more recognised and if you want a decent service I would check for the qualifications.

---

My wife is in the International Professional Federation of Aromatherapists.

=====

Re:Aromatherapy Massage

Posted by Archbob - 2007/10/05 22:42

---

Good article.

About your question of certifications. No, there is no overall certification. There are trade schools that offer certifications in this subject though. There are also professional societies which you can get certifications from.

=====